CONDITION ABDICATED (PERSISTENT) The Princess has abandoned her duties to the Light. She cannot peruse any action that falls under the purview of her calling without spending a point of Willpower, at which point she is free do so for the remainder of the scene. If the Princess is forced to perform relevant actions, such as a Champion who's attacked and must defend herself she subtracts her Shadows from all relevant rolls. Again a point of Willpower can remove the penalties. Resolution: The Princess achieves an exceptional success on an action related to her Calling Resolution: The Princess gains or loses a Dot of Belief.	CONDITION ABJECT DENIAL Your character witnessed an act of cruelty so terrible she refuses to accept such a thing is even possible. She must flee immediately from the perpetrator, the victim and any clear reminders of the crime and its results. If she is forced to confront them all rolls take a penalty of Shadows until she escapes the area. Resolution: The scene ends.
CONDITION ADVISED (VARIABLE) Your character has consulted someone of exceptional skill and knowledge upon a problem. Perhaps one of the Queens, who are nothing short of demi-goddesses with lifetimes of experience. It could also be one of the greatest native Dreamlanders, a living avatar of the sum of mankind's knowledge on a topic. Even an exceptional mortal along the lines of Sherlock Holmes would qualify. Resolution: When your character is confronted with a problem she has received advice on she can cash in the advice, replacing one roll with automatic successes. If the advice came from a person represented by the Mentor merit the character gains one success per dot of Mentor, otherwise the storyteller must decide. Topic: _____ Bonus Successes: _____	CONDITION ADULT SUPERVISION (PERSISTENT) Your character is expected to follow rules set by an older authority figure, who probably dose not realise she is a Princess and would most likely be horrified to learn about dangerous activities such as fighting Darkspawn. The strictness of the rules placed upon a Princess depends on the her age, cultural norms and the individual personality of her supervisor. An exceptionally young Princess may be forbidden to leave the house alone, but a slightly older Noble may be given a free reign providing she is back by dinner and remains reachable by phone. Beat: The character suffers a significant hardship because of the rules set down by her guardian. Beat: The character breaks the rules and faces a significant punishment. Resolution: The character acquires independence. Resolution: The guardian learns of her activities and is convinced to be supportive (consider buying a dot in Mentor).
CONDITION – BOON BARGAIN (VARIABLE) Your character has a one time way of making a purchase at exceptional prices. Maybe they just have a coupon for a discount. Perhaps some televisions have “fallen of the back of a lorry”, but hurry while stocks last. This Condition reduces the Availability of an item by one dot. Cash in: Your character acquires goods or services a discounted Availability. Applicable purchases: _____ BOON CONDITIONS DO NOT PROVIDE BEATS	CONDITION – BOON ALERT Your character has entered a state of heightened awareness and no detail escapes her sight. This might apply to a named trait, a category of traits, or a speciality like field that works across skills. Ending the condition: Blessings are temporary, and vanish after a while. Ending the condition: Some blessings end when a certain condition is met. Affected trait: _____ Increase: _____ Duration: _____ End trigger: _____ BOON CONDITIONS DO NOT PROVIDE BEATS	CONDITION BEFRIENDABLE Your character's ideals have been shaken, and now she is reaching out for advice and guidance. Her new open mindedness can result in good or ill. Resolution: Increase your character's impressions of another by one level for their next attempt at Social Maneuvering. Your character's impressions remain artificially high until her last door is open or until the Social Manoeuvring concludes some other way. The chosen character must be one who's actions will introduce drama and plot complications to the story.
CONDITION BODY DYSMORPHIA (PERSISTENT) Your character does not feel comfortable in her mundane identity. She might have body image issues, be transsexual or feel incomplete without her Transformed Abilities and skills. Choose triggers that are appropriate for your character such as hearing insults about her weight or failing a roll in a certain skill. When this happens your character immediately excuses herself to Transform and tries to remain Transformed for the rest of the scene unless she Succeeds on a Resolve + Composure roll. Beat: Your character gets into trouble because she had to Transform at an inappropriate time. Beat: Your character gets into trouble from trying to move part of her mundane life to her transformed identity. Resolution: Your character receives therapy or surgery and becomes comfortable in her mundane identity. Resolution: Your character joins the Court of Mirrors and removes any need for her Mundane identity.	CONDITION BURDEN OF LEADERSHIP (PERSISTENT) The Princess has donned the Mantle of Hearts, and the responsibility to be a paragon of morality that her people may guide themselves by. The Princess gains 8again on Sensitivity rolls when the victim or the perpetrator is someone blessed by this Charm. In addition, if anyone blessed by this Charm causees her to face a Belief compromise through setting a Bad Example, she does not halve or double the perpetrator's modifier when making her own Comrpromise roll. Beat: The Princess suffers from Sensitivity or loses a dot of Beleif because of this condition. (For Compromise rolls, roll the lost dice separately to see if this Condition is responsible.) Ending the condition: The Condition fades at the end of the scene. This does not grant a Beat.
CONDITION COURPTED EYE (PERSISTENT) A magical being has taken your sight for it's own. You can still see fine but be warned, anything you can see it can see. Ending the Condition: Magic will fade in time. Beat: Your sight is used against you. Resolution: Magic fades in time. Who stole your sight: _____ Duration: _____	CONDITION – BOON CLOAK OF SHADOWS (PERSISTENT) Your character has become a being of living shadow. She is an Ephemeral Being, similar enough to Ghosts to touch and be touched, but she is permanently Manifested without the need for a Condition. The Princess does not gain Influences or Manifestations but she may use her Charms, except Perfect Charms which do not work on her shadow-body. The Princess may attack others by rolling Strength + Lacrima, she does Lethal damage but a successful attack also drains a point of Willpower. She may also speak as normal, her strange form grants a Lacrima bonus to Intimidation. The Princess also has all the Benefits of the Darkened Template, but she uses the Noble rules for Sensitivity. Ending the Condition: Strong light can harm the Princess, as can magic. CONDITION CONFUSED Your character is a bit unsure about what's going on, perhaps he is busy trying to survive while processing the existence of vampires. Perhaps a con-artist just pulled the wool over his eyes. Regardless of why, poor information leads to poor decisions. Causing the Condition: Chaotic circumstances beyond what your character faces in day to day life can be confusing. Causing the Condition: An Exceptional Success on a subterfuge roll can often inflict this condition. Resolution: Your character makes a bad decision because of his poor information. Resolution: Your character discovers appropriate facts and gets to grips with the situation.	CONDITION – TAINTED CURSED (PERSISTENT, VARIABLE) Your character is enchanted by magic which decreases her abilities. This might apply to a named trait, a category of traits, or a speciality like field that works across skills. If a Curse reduces an Attribute to zero then all rolls using that attribute automatically fail, in addition to roleplaying considerations. Supernatural abilities powerful enough to do this will explicitly state so in their description. Beat: The character fails a significant roll because of this Condition (roll the missing dice separately). Resolution: Curses are temporary, and vanish after a while. CONDITION – OBJECT CONSECRATED (PERSISTENT) The area has be saturated with Noble magic, and serves as a foundation for certain Charms. The benefits are listed on the Charms themselves. Only the Princess(es) responsible for Consecrating a place may use it to enhance their Charms, but other Princesses can do so with her help. Causing the Condition: The Palace Merit or Charm Consecrate can Consecrate ground. Ending the Condition: Unconsciously consecrated ground will fade if the bond of intimacy is disrupted. Ending the Condition: If the Condition was created by Charm Consecrate it may expire after some time. Ending the Condition: A Tainting ends the condition. Ending the Condition: Suppressed Taint can slowly erode the Condition. Duration: _____ Activation Successes: _____ Supressed Taint: _____ Sanctuary: Y/N INANIMATE OBJECTS CANNOT GAIN BEATS.
CONDITION DEPRESSION (PERSISTENT) Your character is suffering from depression. Whenever your character fails a roll which is important to achieving an Aspiration (including variants such as Dreams) roll Resolve + Composure, on a failure loose a point of Willpower and you can neither spend nor regain Willpower for the rest of the scene. Beat: Your character succumbs to a bout of depression. Beat: Your voluntary declare your character has a bout of depression. This only grants beats when the hardship is significant. The hardship includes more than the lost Willpower, such as declaring your character does not to peruse an opportunity because of her depression. Resolution: Gain a dot of Integrity (or equivalent) Resolution: Roll an Exceptional Success on a Breaking Point (or equivalent) Resolution: Therapy, medication or a significant lifestyle change overcomes the fog of depression.	CONDITION – OBJECT DAYDREAMING ZONE The area has been saturated with the raw power of the Dreamlands. Any Dreamlanders in the area gain the Materialise Manifestation, while materialised treat them as though they were in the Dreamlands for all rules purposes. She may also refuse orders that pose a significant risk of harm to herself, unless this Condition has the Suicidal Modifier. If the modifiers are partial, then your character may roll to contest those orders. She must beat the original activation successes using the same traits she used to resist the mental domination magic. Beat: Your character suffers a significant hardship during her service. Resolution: The magic wears off or is broken. Loyal to: _____ Duration: _____ Unethical: Y/N/Partial Suicidal: Y/N/Partial	CONDITION DISSOCIATION (PERSISTENT) Your character did something so terrible that she refuses to accept it. Instead she separates her two identities, using one to shield the other. Every time the Princess transforms into her guilty identity (whichever one committed the act) lose one point of Willpower. In addition neither identity are able to remember what they did while in the other identity. Beat: Your character gets into trouble because she could not remember something. Resolution: The character admits to her crime and makes amends. Resolution: The character gains a dot of Belief.
CONDITION DRAMA QUEEN Your character must always be in the centre of attention; whenever she is in a situation where somebody other than herself has the limelight she is compelled to act out. Resolution: Your character acts out inappropriately and causes a scene. Resolution (as Persistent): Your character confronts her inner insecurities and learns that the respect of the world is worth less than self respect.	CONDITION DOUBTING (PERSISTENT) The character's higher calling or guiding principle has been put in question, and she is beset by doubts. While the character is affected by this Condition, she cannot spend Willpower on any action that simultaneously reflects both her Beliefs and her Calling. Resolution: An exceptional success on a roll in which the Princess cannot spend Willpower. Resolution: A Success or Exceptional on a Compromise roll
CONDITION ENTWINED (PERSISTENT) Your character has been magically linked to another and may be affected by magic across any distance, of course such links work in both directions. Beat: Your character suffers a significant hardship because of long distance magic. Resolution: The magic that forms such links is temporary and will fade in time. Her instinctive efforts to shore up her Willpower by giving into her urges have failed, her Integrity has gone and her Willpower is now fading. In addition to the effects of Soulless, she can no longer regain Willpower through her Virtue, only her Vice. Indulging herself brings diminishing returns — whenever she does so, her permanent Willpower drops by one dot before she regains Willpower points to the new maximum. Beat: Loose a dot of willpower. Resolution: Regaining a lost soul; returning to Belief 1.	CONDITION EMBARRASSING PHYLECTERY (PERSISTENT) Some Hopeful have a Phylactery which has an uplifting, even moral meaning to them personally but if presented in public causes nothing but trouble. This may be because the Princess is from an oppressed minority group and her Phylactery is a symbol of her people. It could be because her Phylactery has a different meaning to different cultures, because her Phylactery has an obviously magical or Princessey experience, or because her Phylactery isn't appropriate for her age, social standing or gender. Beat: Your character suffers a significant hardship because of reactions to her Phylactery. Beat: Your character's attempts to conceal her Phylactery causes her a significant hardship. Resolution: At the player's discretion a major life event may reshape the Phylactery.
CONDITION – BOON FLOATING SUCESESSES (PERSISTENT, VARIABLE) Your character is enchanted by powerful magic which grants automatic successes when she needs it. Her Charms fail to activate, or give no help to mundane actions, if the result of a success would break her vow. Moreover, if the Princess does break the vow, she must immediately return to her mundane form and cannot transform for the rest of the scene. Resolution: The Princess undergoes a moral crisis, resolves it by abandoning her vow. This requires a Belief Compromise. Beat: The Princess suffers a significant setback due to keeping her vow.	CONDITION HEAVY CROWN Your character has failed the people who depend upon her and feels that she is no longer worthy to lead. She suffers a dice penalty to all actions where other people depend on her success. -1 for five people or less. -2 for six to 15 people. -3 for 16 to 45 people, -4 for 46 to 100 people and -5 for anything over 100. Resolution: Your character succeeds on an important roll where people depend on her, at least as many people as she originally failed. Resolution: Your character fails an important roll with the above penalties. Resolution (as Persistent): Your character, and her people, learn her value as a leader with her imperfections.
CONDITION INCREDULOUS The character has considered, and rejected, the idea that a supernatural being is, in fact, supernatural. Any roll he makes to recognize the being as anything but a mundane human takes a -2 penalty. This Condition may be taken multiple times, each for a different supernatural. Resolution: The character discovers the supernatural being's true status despite the penalty.	CONDITION – BOON HELD CHARM Your character has been enchanted with a Charm which will take effect only under certain conditions. CONDITION IT’S HER FAULT How could a perfect being like the True Heir fail? The only possibility is that she was too good, too nice, and offered friendship and mercy to someone who didn’t deserve it. If the heir is to succeed she must ensure that this person (who in reality probably did nothing worse than offer helpful advice that contradicted the Brat’s ideas or stood nearby at the wrong time) is unable to sabotage her again. Resolution: The Brat takes steps to ensure the target cannot “sabotage” her again. For example she may ensure an erudite fails her exams so that everyone will know not to listen to her the next time she criticises the Brat’s childish logic. Any Belief Compromises that result are measured as though the target was guilty of whatever the Brat accuses her off. Resolution (when severe): As above, but the Brat’s retribution must be far more extreme. Such as permanently disfiguring the woman who “tricked and seduced” the Brat’s charming prince into her arms.	CONDITION INVOCATION LOCK (PERSISTENT) Each Queen has an Avatar Charm, and your character has just used one. She has become an exemplar of one Invocation, and cannot use any of the others. CONDITION LUMINOUS After sending a particularly large amount of her magic, her hopes and dreams, out into the world the Princess' Inner Light has become luminous. Leftover residue from her spell metaphorically sticks to her skin, lighting the world around her. The Princess, and people around her, find it easier to act upon their own hopes and dreams. Resolution: Whenever someone within Inner Light * 10 yards of the Princess (including the Princess herself) performs a virtuous action (or not so virtuous, for Twilight Charms) that falls under the Duties of the Princess' Calling, they may cash in the Condition for a +1 bonus to the roll. If an Invocation was applied to the Charm the bonus increases to +2 if the act matches both the Queen and the Calling. Charms without an applied Invocation default to the Princess' liege. CONDITION – TAINTED MISFORTUNATE You're character has been cursed with ill fortune. She does not gain 10 again and subtracts any 1s from her Successes. Negative Successes become a Dramatic Failure. Rolls remaining: _____ TAINTED CONDITIONS DO NOT PROVIDE BEATS	CONDITION MIRROR BLINDNESS Looking into the mirror your character was struck blind by her own beauty and can no longer see her flaws. She can Compromise her own Beliefs without questioning herself, or even realising she has done so. The obvious drawback is that she is as likely to commit a serious Compromise that gets her into serious trouble than to get away with a minor Compromise that works to her benefit. Resolution: When your character Compromises her Beliefs you may cash in Mirror Blindness. Do not make a Compromise roll for your character does not realise her actions go against her own Beliefs. This applies even to ridiculously large leaps of logic. Your character could break her athletic rival's leg and not realise she's hurt her.
CONDITION NARCISSISM Your character believes she is the best, brightest and most special person in the world. She probably isn't, and her false confidence causes her to jump to conclusions and accept challenges beyond her capabilities. Resolution: Your character chooses to confront a problem she cannot handle, or goes unprepared to confront a problem she is only able to handle with proper preparation. Resolution (as Persistent): Your character confronts her inner insecurities and learns to accept herself and her limitations.	CONDITION NAME OF THE MOON In any conflict your character cannot use Bequests or Charms (but keeps effects that are already active) until she makes a speech about why she is fighting. This requires a minute of speaking, or a turn if she uses the Royal Tongue, and her opponents must be able to hear her speech. Resolution: Someone takes advantage of the character's speech to move against her. Resolution: The Princess ruins an ambush or gives up an advantage by announcing her presence. Resolution (as Persistent): At the player's discretion this Condition may be resolved any time she gains a dot of Belief.

CONDITION NIGHTMARES (PERSISTENT) Your character has suffered something traumatic and it disturbs her sleep. She does not regain Willpower at night. Nightmares usually last for 10 - Integrity days. If not therapy may be required. Lucid Dreamers cannot just imagine their nightmares away, this condition represents subconscious trauma that is not so easily fixed. However they may fight their nightmares in a combat scene to claim their night's rest. Resolution: Your character has time to process the trauma. (Do not take a beat). Days remaining: _____	CONDITION – OBJECT NECROPOLIS (PERSISTENT) This area is a Necropolis, a paradise for ghosts. Any Ghost within the affected area does not suffer essence bleed, in addition when using Manifestations a Necropolis counts as an Anchor with the Open Condition. Finally all Ghosts within a Necropolis can use the Materialise Manifestation even if they do not have access to it normally. Causing the Condition: Only Governors of Amethyst can cause this condition Ending the Condition: The duration expires. Duration: _____ Area affected: _____ INANIMATE OBJECTS CANNOT GAIN BEATS.
CONDITION – OBJECT OFUDA (PERSISTENT) The target of this Condition is an Ofuda, a protective talisman that drives monsters away. Unless an affected monster succeeds on a Resolve + Supernatural Tolerance - Strength roll they must immediately leave the affected area. When an Ofuda is created all affected beings in the target area must immediately roll to overcome the Ofuda or depart. Causing the Condition: Only the Charm Ofuda can cause this condition Ending the Condition: The charm expires. Ending the Condition: The Ofuda is destroyed or moved more than ten feet. Affects: _____ Strength: _____ Duration: _____ Area affected: _____ Exemptions: _____ INANIMATE OBJECTS CANNOT GAIN BEATS.	CONDITION NIGHTMARES COME ALIVE The character has been assimilated into the fake reality of an Echo. She no longer has access to her own memories, believing instead that she is whomever the Echo has cast her as. She believes the environment around her is real, disbelieving anyone claiming otherwise. She can't use any supernatural abilities, and neither can she spend Willpower points. Should the character leave the Nightscape, or should the Tainted Place be cleansed, purged or purified, this Condition disappears without resolving. Resolution: Suffer harm or greatly imperil yourself by acting in line with your new fake persona, rather than your true self. Trapped Y/N
CONDITION PHOBIA (PERSISTENT) Your character is scared of something, really scared. When she encounters her phobia she must roll Resolve + Composure, on a failure she flees in terror. Beat: Your character is forced to flee. Resolution: Your character overcomes her fear.	CONDITION OVER-COMPENSATORY GUILT Your character has done something she feels guilty about, as a result she is attempting to counter her feelings by making amends in every way except addressing the real issue: If she stole something she might compulsively give charity, if she told a dangerous lie she might become compulsively honest. Resolution: The character suffers a hardship or gives up on something she wants through misplaced penance. Resolution (as Persistent): The character confesses her original crimes and makes amends.

At the end of each week roll the wisps produced. Two successes removes one point of Beauty from a Blessed Place or inflicts one point of Taint Severity, what is left behind after Alhambra steals all which is good. Ending the Condition: After 24 hours without being refreshed the Condition ends. Leftover Wisps are lost. Ending the Condition: The Condition ends 24 hours after the Taint reaches 5 points. Leftover Wisps are lost. Ending the Condition: If Purgation is used on the underlying Taint, remove this condition. Size: _____ Weeks the charm has been running: _____ Wisps available: _____	CONDITION PRIMAL SCREAM The Princess' magic has gone wild and is flowing out of her in a magical storm. Every turn she spends as many Wisps as possible and everyone within Inner Light yards of the Princess, including the Princess, takes one die of Bashing damage per Wisp spent. The Princess may do nothing unless she succeeds on a Resolve + Stamina roll, in which case she may move at a walking pace for a turn. Resolution: The Princess' incapability causes her a serious inconvenience. Resolution: The Princess significantly hurts a friend or ally. Ending the Condition: The Princess falls unconscious. Ending the Condition: The Princess runs out of Wisps.
CONDITION – BOON PURE PERFECTION (PERSISTENT) Your character has become the avatar of Mirrors, the True Heir destined to save the world. She is pure perfection. You get two dots in Striking Looks, with the appearance of “the best person ever!” (it provides a bonus to most things) and the Royal Tongue Merit. Perfection is nothing without people to recognise it. Any Princess with this Condition has her True Followers, for her True Followers the Princess' Striking Looks is considered to be five dots and grant a +5 bonus. The Princess may also spend her follower's Willpower instead of her own, or instead of her own Wisps at a 1:1 ratio. She may not however refill her pools from her followers. Note that taking Willpower from anyone without permission is a Belief Comprromise with a -3 penalty. Ending the condition: The scene ends. BOON CONDITIONS DO NOT PROVIDE BEATS	CONDITION – BOON TILT PROTECTIVE BLESSING (PERSISTENT, VARIABLE) Your character is enchanted by magic which protects her from others, reducing the dice pool of anyone who tries to affect her in certain ways. Ending the condition: Some blessings end when a certain condition is met. Affected trait: _____ Decrease: _____ Duration: _____ End trigger: _____ BOON CONDITIONS DO NOT PROVIDE BEATS
CONDITION – OBJECT SACRED GROVE The area has been sculpted into a beautiful garden that calms all within. Area affected: _____ Duration: _____ Blessings: _____ INANIMATE OBJECTS CANNOT GAIN BEATS.	CONDITION RUNNING ON FUMES (PERSISTENT) A Princess' magic is her hopes, beliefs and emotions given form. Your character has used up all her magic, she hasn't lost her emotions but she is out of fuel and running on fumes. It's an uncomfortable situation, but thankfully a temporary one. When adding Willpower to a dice pool you only get +2 instead of +3, in addition you take a -2 penalty on rolls that depend upon your emotions. Typically this covers making emotional connections with people, expressing yourself and enjoying works of art. Wisp regeneration rolls and Charms are unaffected (the lack of Wisps already covers the effects on magical ability). Beat: The character fails a roll because of this Condition (roll the missing dice separately to determine if it was because of this condition). Resolution: The character refills her Wisp pool. The condition ends when she has more than (10 - Belief) Wisps.

CONDITION SELF-DOUBT Your character has done something that shakes her confidence in herself and now she looks to other's for guidance. When someone attempts social manoeuvring in order to recruit the Princess' support for their plan or to otherwise follow her lead the Princess starts with two fewer Doors than she would normally have. Resolution: Someone takes advantage of your character. Resolution (as Persistent): The character reaffirms her sense of self worth by overcoming a similar problem to the one that shook her self worth. Resolution (as Persistent): The character reaffirms her sense of self worth by successfully applying her ideals to a difficult or dangerous task.	CONDITION SCARS OF THE PAST (PERSISTENT) Your character has a scars from a past trauma, and when exposed to stimuli that causes that trauma to resurface she must make a Sensitivity roll. As a rule of thumb this Condition should only be used when your character rolls Sensitivity for something vastly different from the normal causes. A sheltered character who rolls Sensitivity at a simple fist fight would not qualify, but one who rolls Sensitivity at the smell of her dead mother's favourite perfume would. Beat: Score at least one Success on a Sensitivity roll cased by this Condition. Resolution: Time and therapy can resolve the condition, but some scars never heal right.
CONDITION STEREOTYPICAL (PERSISTENT) Your character has been magically transformed into a walking stereotype. Your vice is replaced with acting in character for your stereotype where as taking any action that goes against the stereotype requires a point of Willpower. Finally you also take the Open conditions to any Spirits or Dreamlanders who personify the stereotype. Duration: _____ Stereotype: _____ Beat: Your enforced behaviour causes you a significant setback. Ending the Condition: The magic affecting your behaviour will wear off after time.	CONDITION SENSORY OVERLOAD (PERSISTENT) Your character does not cope well in over stimulating environments. When you take this Condition choose one or more environments such as: Loud places, crowds, loud crowded places, strong plastic smells, or something else along those lines. Upon entering the designated environment your character takes a -1 penalty to all Social rolls which increases by one every half an hour. After an hour you also take a -1 penalty to Mental and Physical rolls which also increases by one every half an hour. Neither can grow beyond -5. Beat: Your character gives up an opportunity or suffers a significant set back to avoid an uncomfortable environment. Resolution: Most characters with this Condition are born with it and cannot remove it without powerful magic.
CONDITION SHATTERED CONFIDENCE (PERSISTENT) Your character has completely lost her confidence in herself. Emotions are magic, and her lack of faith in her herself and her magic has become a self fulfilling prophecy. Your character cannot Transform, use Charms or Practical Magic. Even A Princess of Mirrors will be limited to her mundane identity. Beat: Your character is harmed or fails a significant goal because she could not access her magic. Resolution: The character gains a dot of Belief.	CONDITION SHADOW TAKEOVER The Princess' Jungian shadow has overflowed with magically charged negative emotions and become sentient. No longer a healthy container for negative aspects of the self, it has sized control of the Princess' body and seeks to redress issues that the princess has repressed or suppressed. Beat: The Jungian shadow causes the Princess a significant problem. Ending the Condition: The magic bestowing sentience to the Shadow wears off after a few hours.

SPIT AND GUM

CONDITION TILT SICK Your character is ill. This condition can be moderate or severe. In the moderate version you take a -1 penalty to all actions, which increases by -1 for every few minutes of strenuous work or turn of combat, the penalties reset after a good rest. A severe sickness inflicts the same penalty but you also take 1 bashing damage for every few minutes of strenuous work or turn of combat. Beat: You suffer a significant setback or hardship because of your illness. Resolution: Magic, medicine or bed-rest will cure most illness.	CONDITION TAINTED Your character has been partly corrupted by a Tainted place. One of the place's Aspirations is rooted into his mind, felt as a nagging desire or a twisted fantasy he doesn't fully understand. He may fulfil that Aspiration at any time. If doing so causes a breaking point (which it very likely will) the results of the roll play out as if the character were still in the Tainted place, except that it cannot reapply this Condition. The seed of corruption within your character's soul inflicts nightmares. He cannot regain Willpower from sleep. Also, the touch of jade is mildly irritating to the character. This has no mechanical effect, and the character may not even notice it consciously, but an attentive observer might take note of his aversion to handling the gemstone. Tainted Aspiration: _____. Resolution: Fulfil the Tainted Aspiration. Resolution: Fulfil your character's Virtue.
CONDITION SOUL SHOCKED Your character has been killed while on a sojourn outside her physical body, resulting in a shocked sense of self. Upon gaining this Condition, roll her current Willpower points (not dots) as a dice pool. Ignore 10-Again on this roll, and do not roll a chance die if she has no Willpower left. She keeps one Willpower point per success, and immediately loses the remainder. While this Condition is in effect, your character does not regain Willpower from Virtue, Vice, or equivalent traits. She still regains Willpower from rest, surrender, and any other means of regaining Willpower. Resolution: Regain full willpower.	CONDITION SLOW TRANSFORMATION (PERSISTENT) For whatever reason the Princess takes time to Transform, roughly about five minutes. Her Phylactery might be a small bag that somehow containing her entire regalia, which she must change into as with any other clothes. She may simply hover, twirl and sparkle for five minutes before the transformation is complete. Spending a Wisp to Transform reduces this to one minute. Beat: Your character's suffers significant hardship because she could not transform quickly. Resolution: At the player's desecration acquiring a dot in Inner Light may grant her the power to transform quickly.
CONDITION – OBJECT SPIT AND GUM Amazingly this thing works but it is held together by nothing more than spit and gum. Use it quickly before it collapses. Duration _____ Ending the Condition: The duration expires, returning the device to whatever sorry state it was in before it bashed into service. Ending the Condition: The device takes damage, ruining whatever fragile repairs were in place. INANIMATE OBJECTS CANNOT GAIN BEATS.	CONDITION SPECIAL SNOWFLAKE Your character must always be the most unique and special person in the room. If all the boys play rugby and the girls play rounders, she must be the one girl who insists on playing rugby. If both sports are open to both genders she has to be a captain or practice distance running by herself. The exception is the Princess' explicit rivals. There are usually two captains in a sports match but the Princess doesn't have to be something silly like empress of the blue team. She can just (try to) prove herself as the one and only victorious captain. Resolution: Your character causes a scene by refusing to be part of the group. Resolution: Your character gives up on something she wants because other people are doing that too. Resolution (as Persistent): Your character confronts her inner insecurities and learns that the respect of the world is worth less than self respect.

CONDITION STUCK MAGIC After trying and failing to perform a large act of magic your character's magic has gotten stuck. It is partly a blow to her confidence and partly an almost physical blockage in the flow of her magic. A good push should clear it. Resolution: At any time when rolling to Transform or invoke a Charm the Storyteller may apply a -2 penalty.	CONDITION STILL PHYLACTERY Unlike most Princesses you have never been able to summon your phylactery to your hand and must transport it through mundane means. You can recreate a destroyed Phylactery but unless you are inside your palace it takes a full hour. Beat: You face a significant disadvantage because you cannot summon your phylactery. Ending the Condition: You may choose to discard this Condition any time you gain Inner Light.
CONDITION SUPERNATURAL HERALDRY (PERSISTENT) Your character's Heraldry is obviously supernatural. If your group has decided that the mortals of the World of Darkness treat Heraldry as normal clothing then for one reason or another your character is an exception. If your group has decided that the public reacts realistically to a Princess' appearance than your character's heraldry causes her more problems than the average Princess; wearing a sailor fuku in public might be unusual but the crown made of flowers floating above her head is clearly supernatural. Beat: Your character suffers a significant hardship because of reactions to her Heraldry. Beat: Your character's faces a significant hardship because she avoided a situation where her Heraldry would be inappropriate. Resolution: At the player's desecration a major life event may reshape your character's Heraldry.	CONDITION SUGGESTIBLE (PERSISTENT) Your character has entered a fugue state where she will follow any instructions given for she lacks the willpower or initiative to do otherwise. For the same reason she will follow her instructions in a literal and uncreative fashion. Blatantly suicidal or heinous orders are ignored, when multiple people are ordering someone around the most recent order takes precedent. Beat: Your character does something against her interests because she was asked to. Resolution: Your character exits her fugue state, how she does this depends on how she got there in the first place. Awakes when: _____
CONDITION – OBJECT TEMPESTUOUS The place or person resonates with Tempesta. Nearby Goalenu do not suffer from Wisp Bleed and a Goalenu may spontaneously appear, if the Queen of Storms desires it. Causing the Condition: Add up the Tempesta dots of everyone nearby, as well as the Inner Light dots of any nearby Princesses of Storms. If there is 20 or more dots apply the Tempestuous condition. Causing the Condition: In the presence of great hatred or destruction apply the Tempestuous Condition. Causing the Condition: A Strengthen Influence of Tempesta may apply this condition to anyone with a dot of Tempesta. Ending the Condition: If the violence ends or the followers of Storms disperse remove the Condition. INANIMATE OBJECTS CANNOT GAIN BEATS.	CONDITION – TAINTED SWEET SIN Your character's darker desires have been enchanced by magic. Cash In: When you indulge your Vice cash in this Condition to gain an extra point of Willpower. CONDITION TRULY MUNDANE The Princess' connection to the Light is hampered while untransformed; in her mundane form she is almost an ordinary human. A Princess with this Condition cannot use a Bequest, add her Inner Light as Supernatural Tolerance, or spend Wisps for any reason other than to transform reflexively. However she may regain Wisps and suffer Sensitivity like normal, and she still has her Echo and Dreams. While mundane she cannot benefit from any supernatural Merit related to the light that represents a skill or ability, such as speaking the Royal Tongue. Beat: The Princess is significantly impeded by this Condition, or falls prey to a hostile supernatural effect while in her mundane form. Ending the Condition: Gaining a dot of Inner Light can optionally resolve this Condition.	CONDITION – BOON TRADED LUCK Good luck for bad. Your character has traded some luck, but will have to uphold her end of the deal. Ending the Condition: On any diceroll, if you get a number of Successes equal to the Traded Successes you instead have just rolled the Stored Successes. Do this before any using power that can grant the Traded Luck Condition. Traded Successes: _____ Stored Successes: _____ BOON CONDITIONS DO NOT PROVIDE BEATS
CONDITION TRUE FOLLOWER (PERSISTENT) You have seen the majesty of the True Heir, and know that next to her nothing you accomplish will amount to anything. You perceive the True Heir as a paragon, the epitome of beauty and charm. In effect, in your eyes she has five dots in Striking Looks as “the best person ever!” (it gives a bonus to most things). In addition realising the futility of attempting anything when someone else is sure to do anything worthwhile faster and better than you saps your Willpower: The True Heir may take your Willpower for her own uses. Beat: Some Willpower is stolen. Beat: The Princess manipulates you into a serious hardship with her Striking Looks. Your True Heir: _____ Willpower available for the taking: _____ Ending the Condition: The scene ends.	CONDITION TRUSTING The character feels a bond of fellowship with everybody; he accepts friendly overtures without suspicion. Anyone beginning a social manoeuvre on the character can accept a Condition to open two Doors without rolling, as if they had the Sympathetic Merit (see GMC page 171); a character who actually has that Merit also raises their impression by one step when using it. Resolution: Someone takes a Condition to open some of your Doors.
CONDITION UGLY (PERSISTENT) There's no polite way to put it, your character looks hideous. You gain a -2 to all Persuasion and Socialise rolls with strangers who can see your face. This penalty does not apply to close acquaintances unless you are specifically trying to seduce them, unless of course their tastes run that way. It is in fact possible to have both the Ugly Condition and the Striking Looks Merit, this usually implies a fearsome visage which is good for intimidation but bad for making friends. Beat: The character fails a roll because of this Condition (roll the missing dice separately to determine if it was because of this condition). Resolution: Your character gets plastic surgery or permanently improves her appearance with magic.	CONDITION TWO HEARTS, ONE SOUL (PERSISTENT) There is nothing the Light cherishes more than a true bond between people, but sometimes the Light itself Blossoms through such a bond. In rare cases two Princesses are connected at the most fundamental level. They Blossom side by side and they share a bond closer than sisters, closer than lovers. A Princess with this Condition needs another Princess to Transform. She and her partner must invoke their Transformations together while standing within a few feet of each other. She has no problem using other abilities, such as Practical Magic and Charms, without her partner; only Transformations need the partner's presence. Beat: Your character's suffers significant hardship because her partner was not present when she needed to Transform. Resolution: The Princess' partner dies.

Meeting with a specific trigger while Transformed makes her lose control, and she reverts to mundane form. The trigger must be an event not under the her control, though it shouldn't be frequent. (A few examples: being splashed with hot water, hearing a specific nonsense phrase.) After losing control the Princess can't transform again during the current scene. If a Princess of Mirrors has this condition it works in reverse. Beat: The Princess gets into difficulties due to involuntarily returning to her mundane form. Ending the Condition: Gaining a dot of Inner Light can optionally resolve this Condition. Ending the Condition: Join or leave the Court of Mirrors.	CONDITION UNION OF LIFE AND DEATH (PERSISTENT) Using the magic of Amethyst your character has is host to a Ghost. Normally she remains in control but that can change. In addition the following benefits apply so long as the two of you are working together: She may access one the Ghost's Numina, rolling Wits + Resolve to use it. She may spend one Willpower to replace her Mundane Dots in a Skill with the Ghost's, however all rolls made using that Skill are at a -1 penalty. If your character and the Ghost disagree on what to do next roll Power vs Resolve + Supernatural Advantage. If the Ghost wins apply the Possessed Condition for the scene, otherwise the Ghost cannot try again for the scene. Beat: The Ghost successfully possesses you. Resolution: The condition vanishes at the end of the day Resolution: You and the Ghost mutually agree to part ways.
CONDITION YANDERE Your character's attraction to another reaches outright insanity. Whenever they're doing an action in the name of their crush, in their perspective, they gain a +3 bonus. However, any actions taken that goes against their obsession takes an equal penalty. They will not stop, even if asked by the person of their obsessions until they either receive psychiatric help, or the magic causing it ends. Resolution: You suffer a significant hardship as the result of your insanity. Resolution: You inflict a significant hardship as the result of your insanity. Resolution: You receive psychiatric help. Resolution: The magic affecting your mind wears off.	CONDITION – OBJECT WARDED The area is protected against incoming magic, this doesn't protect anyone when the foe is already inside the protected area. Any attempt to project magic into the defended area triggers a Clash of Wills against the Princess' Class of Wills dice pool at the point this Condition was created. The Princess who created the wards is also immediately aware of any attempt to breach her defences. An area cannot be defended by multiple wards at the same time, only the strongest ward applies. Defence dice pool: _____ Who's aware of attacks: _____ _____ INANIMATE OBJECTS CANNOT GAIN BEATS.
TILT AEGIS Your character has been blessed with magical protection much like a Princess' Holy shield. You have a number of Aegis Points that may be spent just as a Noble would spend Wisps on her Holy Shield. The Aegis Tilt can not be replaced with a more powerful Aegis, and for the purposes of this rule the Tilt is considered to last one scene even if all the Aegis Points are used sooner. Aegis Points: _____ Aegis Points per turn: _____	CONDITION – OBJECT ZONE OF TRUTH The area has been magically saturated with the power of truth. Anyone with a Composure less than the Activation Successes is unable to knowingly lie, make statements without regard for the truth, or make statements that are true but intended to deceive. If they try the find themselves blurting out the truth or something like "I don't know" They may hold their tongue, unless the Condition is forceful, in which case they must roll Composure + Subterfuge to remain silent when asked a question. It takes a sensitivity to magic for someone to notice the presence of a Zone of Truth, but the effects are obvious to most people after a while. The effects fade at the end of a scene. In addition you cannot suffer from an Integrity Breaking Point while benefiting from this Tilt, however when the Tilt ends you will have to roll any Breaking Points you ignored as the effects catch up to you. Ending the Tilt: The Princess stops performing her battle music. Ending the Tilt: You move out of earshot.	TILT ANTI-WAR ZONE (ENVIRONMENTAL) The area has been magically blessed with peace and tranquillity, which takes the edge of the enormous fight happening within. Bullets turn into a puff of petals mid air, swords grow dull and anger fades. All combat rolls within the affected area take a penalty. This is measured by intent, so healing rolls to help someone back into the fight are penalised. Healing rolls for the sake of healing are not. If the penalty reduces a combatant to a chance die, a Dramatic Failure might destroy their weapon. A gun or sword turns into beautiful flowers. Ending the Tilt: This tilt lasts for one scene. Penalty: _____
TILT BERSERK Your character is in such a rage that they cannot control themselves. They must move towards or attack the focus of this Tilt every turn. They also get +2 to all attack roll, but -1 to all other rolls. Ending the tilt: The duration ends. Ending the tilt: Take twice Stamina Bashing Damage or Stamina Lethal Damage. Duration: _____	TILT BATTLEMENTS (ENVIRONMENTAL) The area is protected by a dormant shield, when it is attacked the shield will spring into existence in time to block incoming fire. The magic of her transformation preserves her ability to move and think but not perfectly: Halve her speed. Her weight is also multiplied by five, so don't walk on anything fragile. Being made of solid wood grants the Princess incredible resilience, she gains one point of general armour for every success which stacks with any other kind of armour. This is in addition to outright immunity against some types of damage such as poisons or radiation. Having no organs or blood to loose, physical damage is a significantly reduced threat. Any physical attack which does less than five points of Lethal damage is downgraded to Bashing damage. Fire damage is not downgraded. Ending the Tilt: The scene ends. Ending the Tilt: Magic is used to revert the Transformation.
TILT MIDNIGHT NOON (ENVIRONMENTAL) Any supernatural trait or ability that makes a reference to daytime, nighttime, sunlight, moonlight or starlight, etc (but not a more specific time like noon or the witching hour) acts as though it was under whatever conditions the Princess would prefer, even if she is unaware of it. Causing the Tilt: Only Ambassadors to Night or Regents of Heliotrope can create this tilt. However without pain you may not even notice you're hurt, any attack that does less than three points of damage requires a Wits + Composure roll to notice. Effects that depend entirely on pain fail to affect you. Finally anyone trying to torture you for information takes a penalty equal to your composure. It's unnerving watching your character ignore pain.	TILT MIST (ENVIRONMENTAL) A strong mist blankets the battlefield. Effect: Mist isn't that harmful, but it does impose a -3 to -5 penalty to visual perception. Be careful while driving.
